Consumers Digest Rates Heath/Zenith® SL-5408 Motion Security Light a “Best Buy” in Home Security
HeathCo Efforts Recognized for Providing Highest Quality Products at the Best Price

Bowling Green, KY – July 25, 2011 – According to the U.S. Department of Justice, an estimated one in 10 households fall victim to home and property theft each year. As a growing concern among homeowners, finding an affordable security, alert system and exterior lighting to help protect the home and deter unwanted visitors has become more of a priority. Dedicated to helping consumers find exceptional products for the best value, Consumers Digest recently unveiled their “Best Buy” ratings for home security products, ranking them based on the lighting technology, materials and features to help assist homeowners to make the right choice when exploring the home security offerings in the marketplace.

HeathCo, the manufacturer and marketer of Heath/Zenith brand electrical products, the category leader in motion activated lighting, recently received a Consumers Digest “Best Buy” rating for the Heath Zenith SL-5408 Motion Security Light. Boasting a motion detector that works up to 60 feet within a 110 degree radius and packaged with a 2-year warranty, the SL-5408 was recognized as a “Best Buy” in its price range of the home security systems category.

As a “Best Buy,” the SL-5408 offers consumers reliability and peace of mind at a price they can afford. Designed to provide safety, convenience and security outside the home, the Heath-Zenith SL-5408 was commended equally for its innovative features and best value.

"We are thrilled that the SL-5408 security light has been recognized by such a trusted, highly esteemed consumer resource, which only reinforces the quality and value of Heath-Zenith motion security lighting," said Lou Ann Schafer, marketing manager, HeathCo.

Participating in helping to keep more homes safe whether by carrying, selling, installing and correctly wiring security, alert, motion detection lighting systems, many electrical distributors, sales associates and electricians can often be on the front lines in terms of choosing the right products to meet the unique needs of each customer.
